Comprehension Activities

Reading Activities for the Home

Sequencing Errands: Talk about errands that you will run today. Use sequencing words (sequence, first, next, last, finally, beginning, middle, end) when describing your trip. For example, you might say, "We are going to make three stops. First we will go to the gas station. Next we will go to the bank. Finally, we will go to the grocery store."

1		stops. First we will go to the gas station. Next we will go to the bank. Finally, we will go to the grocery store."
	in his/her day. For example, if your child attended When did you have cake? Where did you go? Why	what, when, where, why, how questions about an event d a party, you could ask, "Who was there? What did you do? y did the invitation have dogs on it?" Once your child is s/her experiences, try asking these question about a book
	Think Aloud: When you read aloud to your child, talk about what you are thinking. It is your opportunity to show your child that reading is more than just figuring out the words. Describe how you feel about what's going on in the book, what you think will happen next, or what you thought about a character's choice.
READING FICTION
	Before Reading: Point out the title and author. L going to happen in this story? Why?" This will hel	ook at the picture on the cover and ask, "What do you think is p your child set a purpose for reading.
		k your child to tell you what has happened so far or what he/ rour child's opinion: "Do you think the character did the right in any unfamiliar words.

After Reading: Ask your child to retell the story from the beginning, and ask for opinions, too: "What was your favorite part? Would you recommend this to a friend?"

READING NONFICTION

Before Reading: Point out the title and author. Look at the picture on the cover and ask, "What do you think you will learn about in this book? Why?" This will help your child consider what he/she already knows about the topic. Look at the table of contents. You and your child may choose to read the book cover to cover or go directly to a certain chapter.

Comprehension Activities—continued

		n't forget the captions, headings, sidebars, or any other information on the pooverlook these, so it's a good idea to show that the author includes lots of i	•	in
	After Reading: Ask yo out?"	our child, "What was it mostly about? What do you still want to know? Where	could you	find
ОТ	HER IDEAS
	Before your child read story?"	ds a story, read the title and look at the cover. Ask, "What do you think will ha	ppen in the
	Take a quick "book look" and encourage your child to talk about what he/she thinks about what might happen in the story.
	As your child reads, ask questions that start with who, what, where, when, why, and how. If your child does not answer with an appropriate response, redirect by saying, "I think you mean a person because it was a "who" question" then restate the question. After you read a few pages, ask "What do you think will happen next?"
	Ask your child to talk about the beginning, middle and end of the story. You will need to model this several times first.
	Discuss words related to stories such as characters, problem, and solution. For example, "How did characters of the Three Bears solve the problem of the porridge being too hot?" If the child does not know, show the picture or reread the page.
	After reading, ask you	r child, "What was your favorite part? Show me. Why do you like that part?"
	Ask questions about character traits. Ex: "Which character do you think was kind? Which character was bossy? How do you know?" If your child doesn't know, give your answer. You may need to do this many times before your child can do it. He/she may also "mimic" your answer. Encourage your child's attempts.
	Encourage deeper thinking by asking, "If the story kept going, what do you think would happen next?"
	Help your child make connections to his/her life experience while reading. You could say, "Is there anything you read in the story that reminds you of something? The boy who went to the zoo with his family reminds me of when we went to the zoo over the summer. What do you think?"
		As you are reading, think out loud to your child. Ask questions such as "I wo boy is crying in the picture? Will he find his lost toy?" This demonstrates that and comprehension is an active process, not passive.	•	he
		Make puppets to help your child retell a favorite story or use stuffed animals as props to retell a story or part of a favorite story.	 Ensuring a bright	MISSISSIP DEPARTMENT EDUCATIC future for every c

Comprehension Activities

Reading Activities for the Home

